Now with retailer chargebacks costing between 2-10% of manufacturer revenue, properly labeled and readable bar coded products are a financial necessity. Poorly labeled and unreadable bar coded products become a retailer's nightmare when customer transactions are delayed due to product bar codes that can't be scanned. Sharing the pain, retailers and manufacturers are equally on the hook for ensuring product bar codes are properly applied and readable every time.

Ensuring your products are properly labeled is a necessity; and after spending that time on a proper bar coding system it makes sense to be able to track all those bar codes and products you're making.
